ABSTRACT

Case studies at four colleges explored students religious studies, values, and practices. Observations and interviews show that both the practice and the study of religion are thriving and supported by campus cultures. The chapters are: (1) Introduction; (2) West University (Betty A. Deberg); (3) South University (Conrad Cherry); (4) East University (Amanda Porterfield); (5) North College (Conrad Cherry); and (6) Conclusion. One appendix discusses research methods, and the other contains the in-class questionnaire. Each chapter contains endnotes. (SLD)
